INDICT SHEPHERD AND FAIMAN

John G. Sargent Named Attorney General

O.K'D IN SENATE
AFTER WARREN
QUITTS THE FIELD

Appointee Is from Coolidge's State.

Heavy Top Sargent

New York, March 17. (Special.) —When John G. Sargent, the new attorney general who weighs 250 pounds, was at Tufts he played center on the football team. During a game at Amherst there was a report like a pistol, and when the players were disengaged it was found that the center had fallen on the ball and burst it.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Washington, D. C., March 17. (Special.) —President Coolidge's substitute nomination of his close friend, John Edward Sargent, a stout, jovial Vermont lawyer, 4 years old, to be attorney general of the United States was confirmed yesterday by the Senate by a vote of 70 to 12.

Mr. Sargent is a man of energy and character by the Senate, and he was appointed by the president.

He has been a member of the Senate since 1913, and he is now in his 12th year.

Mr. Sargent is a man of great ability and he has filled with unusual success.

He is to get to dinner after a talky afternoon on one of numerous, high priced, gasoline, Teas, Domes, and other, meetings not bearing on the peace and good will ordinarily maintaining between Calvin Coolidge and the more gentle men who like to speak of themselves as "representatives of the sovereign states"—merely called out to the chair and adjourned until noon tomorrow.

HISTORIC BATTLE ENDED.

Thus ends the great battle which began last Tuesday with a Republican state's election by a tie vote, and ended by a majority of two, of a Republican President's nomination of Charles Fletcher Warren of Michigan as attorney general, and which took place in historic significance and drama yesterday when the same nomination was rejected by a majority of seven.

The historic aspect of the second reason lay not in the fact that a president's choice had been defied and repudiated but in the far more momentous fact that defiance and that repudiation were based on the Senate's attitude to enforce its constitutional right to "advise and confirm" in such a choice.

With with Strategy.

For the looker-on, it has been a curious fight to see; by the constitutionality it is considered to have been extremely worth making. The victory came out of it with the honors of state and of strategy all theirs.

There was a speech that made you proud to be an American, and when summoned the spirit of Daniel Webster to stand by his side to give the strength amid "an atmosphere" meant the atmosphere of official Washington—that weakens a man's heart more than any other atmosphere in God's world; then it was no wonder he seemed to be strong. It was like a priestly invocation.

The name and the speech of Borah on every tongue today, almost to the point of unpopularity. Warren's evening action by the Senate means peace between it and the press, but it is a watchful peace.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IRITATED.

It leaves an extremely irritated President on the scene.

The regular White House audience to the press at noonday Mr. Coolidge was offended when three or four of the group of a score or so of correspondents were addressing in order the bulletin of his views. He was not that row, and his thoughts were decisively clear.

Questions about the fate of the "nonconformist," whose name has been bared or was soon to be mentioned for with Sargent's and plain evidence that Mr. Warren probably would accept a recess appointment

LONDON SOCIETY SCANDALS STIR UP PARLIAMENT

High Life' Bared in Three Courts.

BY DON SKENE.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

LONDON, March 17.—The London society scandal season reached a lurid climax today with a three ring circus of illicit love affairs, blackmail, and crookedness, revealed by testimony to packed courtrooms.

The revelation of rotteness in certain circles of British aristocracy has shaken the foundations of high society, causing alarm even in parliament, where various plans to check its spread are being desperately considered.

The amazing Dennington case, at the tenth day's hearing, continued to furnish thrill seekers new spicy dramatic details, but it was forced to share the sensation honors with the "mystery case," which broke after last minute efforts by the judge to secure a settlement outside the courtroom.

Lady Wilson-Barker, widow.

This new case is the story of an alleged conspiracy by the beautiful Lady Wilson-Barker, wife of a naval captain, Sir David Wilson-Barker, one of Great Britain's greatest scientific authorities and former president of the Royal Meteorological society, against the wealthy Frank Waterhouse, who was stripped of every farthing before he died insolvent.

Mr. Waterhouse's widow is suing

Lady Wilson-Barker to recover huge sums of money the latter is alleged to have taken from Mr. Waterhouse by terrorizing him for many years with a phantom blackmail plot.

A Mytical Blackmailer.

With an accomplice, R. P. Sheldon and Capt. Wilson-Barker, Lady Wilson-Barker is accused of securing a fortune from Mr. Waterhouse by falsely declaring an unknown man obtained knowledge of her illicit love affair with Mr. Waterhouse and threatened to kill the captain unless he received huge money. The lady threatened to commit suicide if the captain divorced her. The widow claims a mythical blackmailer was invented and the counsel hinted that the distinguished Capt. Wilson-Barker had knowledge of the ingenious plot.

The most vital evidence in the case was the deathbed statement of Mr. Waterhouse's butler, Mr. Mills, who, after half a century of service for the same family, raised the secret love affair with dying whispers rather than with a die on my soul.

Third Scandal Involves Americans.

A third scandal today involved

Homer Tyrell Lane, aged 49, an American citizen facing deportation as a "dangerous charlatan and adventurer."

Following the discovery of his psycho-analytic factory, where he discussed most intimate sexual problems with "women in the highest position."

The clients' names were not mentioned, but a list alleged to contain a startling roll of society maids and matrons was turned over to the judge, with stacks of letters "showing that the writers had formed an association of sexual character."

Contrary to the custom, the judge refused bail and returned Mr. Lane to jail for a week while he reads the pile of "black letters" which are closely guarded by Scotland Yard men for obvious reasons.

Lane, whose income from his "consultations and lectures" on "The Philosophy of Individualism" was declared to be more than $12,000 a year, announced that he will call church dignitaries and people of high social position to witness his innocence.

General "Coward" Mrs. Donnan.

A chic silk and French lady's maid, Mrs. Marguerite Pyrronneau, held the witness box spotlight in the Dennington case with her version of the "mystery girl's" secret love adventures. She dramatically told of the struggle of the two rivals, Gen. Sir John Cowans and a Spaniard, Federico Bela, a former official of the League of Nations, for the charms of the international star.

The general in his last illness before his death sent frantic电报 to his widow, Mrs. Pyrronneau, to come to him from London. Federico Bela did not wish her to leave him, and she reluctantly went, "curing her love."

yesterday that he had sufficient evidence to indict and convict Shepherd and Faiman, too—and the discovery of White was an additional blow which Shepherd and Faiman must endure. Even Attorney William Scott Stewart, who, with his partner, Attorney W. W. O'Brien, now represents Shepherd, felt the weight of the blow, for he, too, shouted "har" as White left the room.

Attorney Warns of Conspiracy.

Until the "full, free, and voluntary" statement of Faiman, Shepherd's attorneys had been calling the criminal proceedings a dastardly conspiracy to deprive Shepherd of $1,000,000 he would inherit if there had been no contest.

Every one connected with the continued efforts of the coroner's jury to unearth the facts was called an unprincipled character assassin. Attorney Stewart warned State's Attorney Crowe to investigate carefully lest he and himself be pushed into a conspiracy to rob an innocent man of $1,000,000.

Early yesterday as the questions of Assistant State's Attorneys John Scarbaro, Joseph P. Savage, and Harold Levy and the answers of Faiman were being read, State's Attorney Crowe revealed that he wasn't being pushed, that was going to do the pushing—planning the case to trial. He had sent out four wire messages into the grand jury room when the indictment was voted. Then came White.

Sergts. Mark Franks and Edward Sheehan had learned his address and called on him and he came willingly with them to the Criminal Court building. He was taken first into a room where Prosecutor Savage and Faiman were talking.

"Hello, doctor," White said to Faiman.

Hello, Bob," Faiman said with a smile of welcome and a handshake. Savage directed White to the office of First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman where Shepherd was conferring with Attorney Stewart.

Again Views Prisoner.

"That's the man," he said, looking in, and two profane oaths came from the room before the door was closed. Then he told Savage about his one meeting with Shepherd. After five minutes he again went to Gorman's room and this time Sergt. William Hanks and John Geary were sitting with the prisoner.

"You're the man," White said, walking directly toward Shepherd. "Don't you remember me? You came to the university in the latter part of August, 1923, and asked for the registrar. I told you he was out and Dr. Faiman was also out. I asked you to leave your name and address, but you wouldn't. For god's sake, don't you know it?"

"This man is lying," said as Dr. Faiman is lying," Shepherd said to Savage.

"I'm not," White hotly rejoined.

Then following the exchange of epithets, growing hotter at each word.

"I'd never forget your bulging eyes," was White's final identification, and Shepherd said no more. His eyes then appeared to be surrounded by rings.

White said he saw Shepherd's pictures in the newspapers, but did not much attention to the incident until Faiman was drawn into the investigation. Then, he communicated with Mr. Faiman and he said he told him there was no use of his trying to see Faiman, that the state's attorney would not permit it.

Message Was Garbled.

The witness said he then telephoned the state's attorney's office, but apparently his message was not understood, so no attention was paid to it. Sergt. Franks and Sheehan searched for him three days before learning his address. They had been tracing all former employees of Faiman's school.

Faiman and Shepherd were sent back to their respective places of detention after White had departed. That both will sleep tonight in the county jail is probable, but it may be that State's Attorney Crowe will request that the capsas for their formal arrest not be served upon them until he has had more opportunity to have identifications made. The capsas will issue automatically upon the return of the indictment before Chief Justice Jacob Hopkins today.

MACHINERY STARTS

The indictment of Shepherd and Faiman set in motion the legal machinery for what promises to be one of the outstanding murder trials of history. Two beautiful girls are concerned, innocently, in the case—Miss Isabella Pope, who had been engaged to marry McClinton and was prevented from doing so by Shepherd a few days before his marriage to Miss Pope, to whom Shepherd wrote "Precious Sunshine" letters, telling her he would divorce his wife and marry her.

The million dollar estate is also involved as this morning, when the indictment is returned, there will be a hearing on the probating of the will before Probate Judge Henry Horner. It is claimed that Shepherd cannot qualify as administrator for the estate while under indictment. Should conviction follow the indictment, the will must thereby be nullified and Shepherd's chances of receiving one penny of the estate would be wiped out.

Other Deaths Involved.

Outside the subtle manner of committing a murder charged to Shepherd by the March grand jury, this indictment raises the possibility of Shepherd's being accused of the murder of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClinton, seventeen years ago, and also a possibility of his being charged with the murder of Dr. Oscar Olson, who died three years ago.

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, lifelong friend of Mrs. McClinton and Billy and brother of the late Dr. Olson, told the grand jury that Shepherd has been in a nervous condition ever since the McClinton fortune and the murder was only incidental to his main purpose.

Shepherd in his confession said that he had consulted him more than a year ago about causing McClinton's death by the use of germs. Faiman said he furnished the germs and that himself, whose wife was then McClinton's guardian, induced young McClinton to sign a will leaving his $1,000,000 estate to Faiman pending his marriage to Miss Pope.

They Confused Frequently.

When Shepherd had the million dollar McClinton inheritance in the will—which was to be given off to McClinton before his death—McClinton became ill and died. McClinton then sought the services of Dr. Faiman, whom he had seen in Chicago. They conferred frequently on the subject, and finally, early last November, Shepherd said the time had come according to Faiman's own words were gloomy.

FAIMAN TELLS DETAILS OF TYPHOID PLOT IN FULL CONFESSION

The confession of Dr. Charles C. Faiman, head of the National University of Sciences, telling of his germ experiments with William D. Shepherd, was made public yesterday by the state's attorney's office. It is in part as follows:

Q.—What is your name? A.—Charles C. Faiman.

Q.—How old are you? A.—Thirty years old.

Q.—Where were you born? A.—Minneapolis, Minn.

Q.—What schools did you attend? A.—The Hopkins High school.

Q.—What other schools did you go to? A.—The Chicago Medical School, St. Paul and Rhodes, and St. Louis college.

Q.—When did you first reside in Chicago? A.—I came to visit in the fall of 1921. I did not start in business until March, 1922.

Q.—What did you do when you first came to Chicago? A.—I did laboratory work gratis.

Look Over School in 1922.

Q.—When did you purchase the school? A.—In March, 1922.

Q.—Are you married? A.—Yes.

Q.—Are you going to tell the whole truth? A.—Yes.

Q.—When were you first involved in this case? A.—The first week in November, 1922.

Tell in your own way the whole story. A.—About the 1st of November, 1922, at the National University of Sciences, I received a letter from William D. Shepherd asking for information on bacteriology and laboratory diagnosis and bacteriological techniques and I turned the letter over to John P. Marchand to call upon him for a personal interview.

Shepherd Visits School.

A few days following Mr. Shepherd came and asked for me at the school, and I talked to him relative to the course and the facilities we had to offer him into the laboratory. I showed him how to operate the microscope and showed him the tubes, retorts, water baths, and showed him around generally.

He took a great interest in typhoid germs, and I showed him that they had many flagell, which gave them the power of locomotion.

Explains Germ Habits.

"The next day Shepherd came back to the laboratory and we discussed bacteria and he was particularly interested in typhoid. He asked about typhoid bacillus and typhoid para. A and para B, and I explained that the antiseptics used for one was not effective in destroying the others. I explained to him that typhoid germs were usually found in water polluted by sewage and sometimes in milk. He asked me if tuberculosis didn't enter the body in the same way, and I told him it usually did in draft. He told me he wanted to start a home laboratory and I told him that he could get materials at any laboratory supply house."

Another Meeting Described.

Q.—When was the fourth visit? A.—The Atlantic hotel.

He phoned me and made an appointment for Saturday noon. We discussed the standard technique and laboratory diagnosis gave more fundamental information.

Q.—Did you show him how to make a smear of germs? A.—Yes. I showed him how to do it with a sterile wire from a fresh culture. Then I gave him three tubes of typhoid germs.

Q.—When was the next time you saw Shepherd? A.—Four or five months later he called and wanted to see me. This was in April, 1922. I was busy, so I told him to meet me at the Palmer house. I met him there and we discussed bacteriology.

Q.—Where was the next meeting? A.—At the Hotel Sherman.

Unclosed on Type of Germ.

Q.—When was the next meeting? A.—In the Atlantic hotel, two weeks later. Shepherd was still in the same room as at the school and that Todd I. was there to operate the microscope and showed him the tubes, retorts, water baths, and showed him around generally.

He took a great interest in typhoid germs, and I showed him that they terred and took effect; a death bed was narrowly averted; McClinton died; no suspicion was aroused; McClinton was buried; then Faiman guessed his share he said.

First Asked $250,000.

He told the grand jurors he had at first demanded $250,000, then "two hundred thousand," and finally agreed to accept $100,000 when Shepherd obtained his grant. When Shepherd obtained his grant, he said, he had even planned on spending this money, as was evident from a letter obtained yesterday by Sanford Olson, son of Judge Olson.

It was addressed to Dwight G. Wallace, 22 West Monroe street, an architect, and was signed by William R. Devere, secretary of the National University of Sciences, 223 South Michigan avenue, the institution of which Faiman is president and was owned by the trustees. The trustees, it was known, had proposed to prop up and furnish to Shepherd. It read as follows:

"Referring to your communication of recent date regarding the erection of a hospital or medical college building, we suggest that you call on our president, Dr. C. C. Faiman, at the above address on next Thursday, Jan. 15 [1923]."

He called and made the following notations of his conversation with Faiman pertaining to the building: "Two hundred students. Ten-class rooms and laboratories and an auditorium for two hundred." Called Jan. 15 on Dr. Faiman and Dr. Livingston. Want a medical school which may cost about $100,000. Supported by endowments and subscriptions and backed by the Swedish-American Orthodox church."

Faiman Seems Unworried.

Faiman was in a pleasant frame of mind early yesterday morning after he had signed the confession that brands him as an accomplice in a long and carefully executed murder which might have passed as a natural death but for the suspicions of one man, Judge Olson.

Slender, of medium height, wearing short "burnsides" and mustache, and sandy hair, Faiman was fashionably dressed, but his general appearance suggested effeminacy. His pretty wife, who adorns him clean clothing every day and spending an hour twice with him each day he has been in the custody of the state's attorney. Always pleasant, always smiling when out of the room where State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Assistant State's Attorney John Scarbaro, Joseph P. Savage and Harold Levy have been questioned, he has been engaged to marry McClinton and was prevented from doing so by Shepherd a few days before his marriage to Miss Pope, to whom Shepherd wrote "Precious Sunshine" letters, telling her he would divorce his wife and marry her.

The million dollar estate is also involved as this morning, when the indictment is returned, there will be a hearing on the probating of the will before Probate Judge Henry Horner. tures were not contaminated. At this time he spoke of his son.

Explains Germ Habits.

Another Meeting Described.

Q.—How long afterward? A.—Over a month later.

Q.—Was it in September or October?

A.—Yes, it was about a month after the Atlantic hotel meeting, and during that time it had been very warm.

Discussed Methods.

Q.—Did you meet him in the Clark street lobby? A.—Yes. We sat in the lobby and we discussed the method of giving typhoid culture. I told him that hydrochloric acid in the water sometimes destroyed the germ, but to be safe of infection to wash off the surface of the media in plain water, warm or cold.

Agrees to the Price.

"He said all right, he would take care of me with $30,000, but it would take three to four months to straighten me out. He told me he was to the bad and short of money, and all that he had was $50."

Q.—When was the next time you saw him? A.—It was in the Morrison hotel in the morning. We met, and walked down into the entryway where there were several stores, and we stood at a jewelry store window, and he told me Billy was very sick; that he had given him a laxative cathartic.

Q.—Did he say pills? A.—No, he did not mention the kind of laxative.

Q.—Did he say anything else? A.—He seemed very nervous. I noticed that he didn't stand still, and he was always smoking. We mentioned vaccines, and I told him he didn't mean anything by that. The jurist also declared a finding of death by typhoid fever did not preclude a theory of death by criminal inoculation.

Not a Hanging Case.

Q.—Wasn't it a fact that you had agreed to meet so often and keep advised of the progress of the case?

Q.—Did he say anything about using undue influence to obtain a signature on the will? A.—No. I thought about that afterward. The witnesses were not discussed, but he said he would make it to suit himself practically.

Q.—Was he the next time you saw him? A.—Four or five months later he called and wanted to see me. This was in April, 1922. I was busy, so I told him to meet me at the Palmer house. I met him there and we discussed bacteriology.

Q.—Where was the next meeting? A.—At the Hotel Sherman.

Shepherd Recovered Letter.

Q.—All records wiped out? A.—Yes. I gave him the letter he had written to me at this time. We were standing talking and he asked me about the letter. I told him it was easy enough to get, there was no cipher system; we have the card file and the letter file. I stood next to him while he opened the letter file to S and pulled out the letter he'd sent. I said that letter ought to be worth something to me. I'll have to get something out of the letter for my last time that I have not been compensated for. He gave me the $50; I jumped him about $50, he had worked on the plan all night. He had—he had—it was all right. Faiman quoted himself as saying:

"I said: 'Where in hell do I come in?' He told me he'd given the germs and everything would be easy." He said: "What t'ell do you want?" And I answered that the damn anxiety of it all was worth a quarter of it. He answered something about "kidding."

At the same time, he brandished as falsehood stories that the Japanese were making unusual strides in the development of typhoid. He laughed at the story the Japanese are manufacturing 500 planes a month, saying that Japanese construction of aircraft is beyond even the United States. He pointed out that his country has no commercial aviation.

Faiman seems unconcerned.

He is in a pleasant frame of mind early yesterday morning after he had signed the confession that brands him as an accomplice in a long and carefully executed murder which might have passed as a natural death but for the suspicions of one man, Judge Olson.

Slender, of medium height, wearing short "burnsides" and mustache, and sandy hair, Faiman was fashionably dressed, but his general appearance suggested effeminacy.

Other Deaths Involved.

Faiman Called Opportunist by His Associates

Himself Silent, Others Reveal Life Story.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
A Bohemian bacteriologist was a center of interest yesterday at the state attorney's office while inquiry continued over the National University of Sciences, 2826 South Michigan avenue. It was there that William D. Shepherd is said to have obtained the typhoid germs alleged to have caused the death of his foster son, William McClintock.

The gentleman with Bohemian antecedents and the knowledge of bugs was Dr. Charles C. Faiman, president of the "university" who was yesterday jointly indicted with Shepherd for the murder of young McClintock.

Slight, pale, colorless of personality, the 35 year old man whose ingenuity was able to secure students for the school, had nothing forceful or vivid about his individuality or personality. He was more of any of that nervousness which his associates on the faculty have characterized as "a terrible temper, probably because his ancestors are Indians."

Calm as He Leaves Jury Room.

He was calm as he came out of the grand jury room where he had been answering questions for the better part of two hours. But he was reticent. It remained for C. A. Hyatt, instructor of swimming at the Sovereign hotel, to tell a few hours later, some significant facts about the vagaries, during the last five years, of this itinerant specialist in germs and "eclogies."

The method of using everything available to make capital out of seems to have been a basic principle of Dr. Faiman, according to Mr. Hyatt, who has known the scientific opportunist for the last five years.

"It was in 1920," Mr. Hyatt explains, "when I was teaching swimming up in Minnesota. I inserted an ad in the local papers advertising a room for rent. Dr. Faiman answered the ad and took a room, in my home in the Hill apartments at 31st and Hennepin streets, Minneapolis.

"He was clerking in a drug store then, and used to bring home many bottles of perfume and experiment. He said he wanted to go into business for himself and had made a beginning in the study of pathology when he had worked as an undertaker with a firm on Hennepin street. I think it was Johnson & Johnson."

Graduate of Hopkins School.

This part of the story is further verified by dispatches from Hopkins, Minnesota, near the environs of Minneapolis. Hopkins is the birthplace of "Chuck" Faiman, and in 1917 "Chuck" was graduated from the Hopkins high school.

But to return to Mr. Hyatt's story. "In the spring of 1922 Faiman left his drug store position, and for $25 he bought-up an old collection agency which was located in the Andrews building. He advertised himself as a 'collection expert.' But the business was not so good and presently he gave it up."

This opportunist's next adventure, according to Mr. Hyatt, shifted over to groceries. He would visit a small, impoverished grocery store, seem to appraise it carefully, negotiate its purchase with a cash payment of several hundred dollars and a second mortgage on some phantom lots.

Mr. Hyatt says that Dr. Faiman was a Dr. now told him he spent 1921 in Duluth, where he had made a specialty of treating social diseases, operating largely in the mining community of West Duluth.

In Chicago Since 1922.

In 1922 Mr. Hyatt, who was then a traveling representative for the mid-western division of the American Red Cross, was in Chicago. Dr. Faiman, upon arriving in Chicago, looked up his former landlord and told him he was an estimator of value in a reputable Chicago medical school.

And the next thing Hyatt heard of him was he was head of the National University of Sciences.

That the opportunist was still casting over pebbles into the water is demonstrated by a letter that Judge Harry Olson yesterday obtained, and by something which Viscount De Vere said.

Faiman Hospital and College. The letter was one which Dwight G. Wallace, an architect at 27 West Monroe, received from Dr. Faiman on Jan. 15, 1925, asking him to call the following Thursday to discuss plans for the erection of a "hospital and medical college."

On the bottom of the letter is Mr. Wallace's notation following the conference, which was held Jan. 15, 1925.

The data shows that Dr. Faiman had told the architect he purposed to build a hospital and college to cost $100,000, to be "supported by subscriptions and endowments, and to be backed by the Swedish-American Orthodox church."

Wallace had advised him that he had no other money than his own, and that he had no other name than Faiman, his secretary, said.

"He started plans to build the Hahnemann Hospital, 2814 Ellis Avenue, but he never came to terms with them. Then he was thinking of buying some other place, I don't know the name, but the fire department condemned it and that transaction was off."

His Young Wife.

Faiman's wife was a pretty Miss school girl who married him in Chicago, where she was working as a telephone operator, some eighteen months ago.

When she married "the doctor," Dr. Faiman yesterday replied, "she was too busy doing his stenographic work to pay any attention to me, now we're back to the time of the institution."

And she has been, when she gave up her position as secretary of the school, she has been too busy, she admits, "taking care of the eight rooms of the three floors of the school to know what a bug looks like."

And she certainly never saw Shepherd since she insists.

Facsimile of letter which was sent to architect by Richard Devere, secretary of the National University of Sciences. It shows that Dr. Faiman anticipated having a large sum of money on hand about Jan. 15. Marginal notes indicate that Faiman had fixed $100,000 as the cost of the new school which he was planning to build. That was the amount he claimed in his confession Shepherd promised him.

STATE READY TO OPEN PROBE INTO DIPLOMA MILLS

Faiman's School Brings Rigid Inquiry.

Chicago's diploma mills may be wiped out of existence immediately as a result of the disclosures in the Shepherd case against the National University of Sciences, state officials asserted yesterday.

Publicly, in the confession of Dr. C. Faiman, head of the school, has caused a flood of information to travel into the offices of A. M. Shelton, head of the state department of registration and education. He will come here Friday to start his investigation.

The gloomy old mansion at 2933 Michigan avenue was in silence yesterday. The National University of Sciences has started its summer session. Its president is locked up, accused of being a part of a plot. Its long list of multi-initiated professors is scattered over the whole nation.

Case of Viscount De Vere.

Reporters yesterday got new illumination of C. C. Faiman's educational tactics.

For instance, there is the case of the Viscount William Richard De Vere, Sc. B. Ph. D.—imposing, as it appeared in Faiman's catalogue of the school's virtues. Our dear alma mater's secretary, the prospectus says.

"Secretary is right," De Vere mused yesterday, flicking cigarette ash daintily and shooting back a couple of tasteful ones. "I was Faiman's typist. He doesn't know who I am."

"And where did you get all the degrees and the title?" he was asked.

Faiman Conferred Degrees.

"I believe the family is of noble blood," he said, "and when I told that to Faiman I guess he thought it would look good in the book, as well as some degrees, and he just conferred them on me."

De Vere's father, he said, was interested in gold mines in South America and took him to England when he was 9 years old. When young De Vere grew up he came here to study in Faiman's school. In 1924 he became a school typist.

Even more humble are the duties of R. Walter Smith, Sc. B. M. B. and Ph. D.—let Faiman tell it. He's listed as the school bursar, but in reality he's the campus janitor, and, modestly, a very good one, indeed, sir, until the crash came.

Keeps the Floors Clean.

"My only degree is that 'M.B.' thing," Janitor-Burser Smith admitted, wryly. "That means 'master of bacteriology,' and the doc himself conferred it on me. I have been extremely industrious in keeping the floor clean of bacteria and I suppose he thought I deserved a little public recognition for my work."

As for the rest of the staff, stoop-shouldered with initials in the Faiman name, here are some:

Arvid Person, S.R. and D.O., listed as first vice president of this scientific school, is a public accountant.

William A. Blackburn, M.B. and Dr. P.N., second vice president, is enjoying the rainy season in sunny Los Angeles.

The Rev. Roy T. Johnson, with too many initials to write down here, is said to be in Louisiana.

Luella Rhuebell, supposed business manager, lives in Seattle.

The Rev. Albert E. Ashton, "dean of students," is doing his deaning in smoky Pittsburgh.

Prof. William N. Good, director of physical training, is said to be head of the school.

And Dr. Ray G. Hubert, press chairman of the American Osteopathic society, yesterday added his voice to the hue and cry and called Faiman "just a plain fake."

They were invited. That was twenty-two years ago and the visit is still on. Mrs. McClintock died, her son is dead, and Shepherd nearly has the million willed to him by the 21 year old boy for whom he acted as foster parent for many years.

Father Died Years Ago.

Shepherd's father died when the youth was very young. The first few years of his life he was brought up by friends and neighbors. The family was poor and the widow was relieved by the slight lightening of her burdens when Willie got board and boarded in the McClintock home.

He Takes Up Law.

His labors were few, so far as can be learned. He tried his hand at being a constable in a justice court and for years he was a hero expanded gloriously under a little pressure.

Then he seems to have spent the years between 1910 and 1915 living with the fortune telling mother or occasionally with his brother.

He Grows Up.

And when "Darl" came back from the war he was a hero expanded gloriously under a little pressure.

HOW MCCLINTOCK QUIZ WAS BEGUN BY JUDGE OLSON

He Pushed Inquiry from Time of Youth's Death.

William McClintock became known as the millionaire orphan when his mother died on June 7, 1909, leaving his sole heir to the fortune to which he had been added by death. He was the first to inherit it directly from his mother, the previous history of the fortune being:

A noble family in England held the fortune several generations ago. In about 1870 the head of the family died leaving the estate to his widow.

She married William Hickling, a country squire. They came to America and settled in Ottawa, Ill.

Mrs. William Hickling died, leaving the estate to her husband.

William Hickling married Sarah Gender and a few years later died, leaving the fortune to his widow.

Widow Marries McClintock.

Mrs. Sarah Gender married William McClintock, resident of Lamare, Ill., within a short time and William McClintock inherited the fortune.

William McClintock moved to Chicago and married Miss Emma Nelson of Toledo, Kas., in 1902.

William Nelson McClintock was born April 2, 1903.

William McClintock Sr. was killed in an automobile accident in Chicago, the estate going to his son.

Miss Nelson McClintock died on June 7, 1909, and her son inherited the bulk of the fortune. On Nov. 23, 1924, William Nelson McClintock became ill. He died on Dec. 5, 1924.

The will, filed for probate on Dec. 9, 1924, showed that William D. Shepherd, no relation, was willed all the fortune save $8,000 yearly, which was to be paid to Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée.

Cousins Start Will Contest.

On Dec. 17, 1924, it was announced that ten cousins of McClintock had engaged Attorney Orville Taylor in an attempt to break the will.

On Dec. 24, 1924, McClintock's body was removed by order of Criminal Justice Jacob Hopkins of the Criminal court and an inquest ordered by Coroner Oscar Marchand.

On March 2, Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court flatly accused Shepherd of the murder; the inquest was ordered postponed until March 24.

On March 12, Dr. C. C. Faiman made important admissions, which he followed next day with the charge that Shepherd had used typhoid germs from him. A later suit in April.

On March 13 Shepherd was arrested.

Consider Only Latest Death.

In the presentation which was submitted by Chief Justice Olson last night was called to the circumstances of the death of Mrs. McClintock and Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of the judge. The present coroner's jury considered only the latest death.

The testimony showed that Mrs. McClintock became ill while with the Shepherds in Texas, and that upon her death she made Mrs. Shepherd co-guardian of her only son and heir, At-

Wife Stands by Shepherd; Says He Is Entirely Innocent

At times with the dramatic fire of a Bernhardt and at times in the tired weeping of a middle aged woman who has seen her house of cards being swept into a tumbled heap by a gesture of fate, Mrs. William D. Shepherd last night recited her story.

In the mansion in Kenilworth that was built with part of the ill-fated McClintock fortune, Mrs. Shepherd staunchly defended the husband whom she will go on trial and try to save his neck from a noose.

This woman, one time daughter of a Kansas village barber, stormed and sobbed, appealed to a Deity that in her stress she seemed to fix near at hand, and through it all maintained just one fact to her interview: "My husband is innocent of all harm! God will prove it for him."

The Rev. Carl A. Naumann, the Shepherds' pastor and head of the St. Paul's English Lutheran church in Evanston, kept a somber vigil with the wife of the alleged murderer. All day he had refused to allow interviews with her, but when night came he relented.

The Rev. Naumann is as emphatic as Shepherd in protesting Shepherd's innocence.

"Shepherd has been maliciously maligned," he said. "I'm going to let God speak. Surely truth will triumph in the end."

He waved aside Faiman's confession as immaterial.

"Pray God for the indictment," said Mrs. Shepherd. "Now my husband will have opportunity to clear himself in a neighborhood."

Poor Billy—if he could only know how horrified he would be. He loved us and we love him as if he were our own child."

"I can remember time after time Mr. Shepherd would take Billy out walking. When he got tired my husband would bring him home and we would create to insure its safety through."

Arthur A. P. Reichmann being the other guardian. Witness said, Dr. Olson was a great friend of the McClintocks, and that in later years he distrusted Shepherd and intended to warn McClintock of his suspicions.

Back in his childhood the heir to $1,000,000 was strangely afraid of Attorney Reichmann, and was not permitted to associate freely with Dr. Olson's children. In his early youth he was often forced to borrow sums such as $1 or $2 from a nearby barber, though $1,000 per month was allowed by court order for his upkeep.

He Meets Miss Pope.

While attending New Trier high school he met Miss Isabelle Pope, daughter of Henry Pope, 910 Lake avenue, Wilmette. He was then living with the Shepherds at 341 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth, in a home purchased for him by the Northern Trust company, trustee of his estate.

The young couple had an understanding equivalent to an engagement when both were 19, but, according to Miss Pope, Billy's guardian, Mrs. Shepherd, had requested that he postpone their betrothal until after his 21st.

The boy went to Dartmouth college, the girl to Northwestern.

Discusses His Majority.

During the Christmas holidays of 1922 the McClintocks' home and there was discussion about his approaching majority, when he would become master of a fortune. That the subject was also discussed in letters was evidenced from a letter later produced by the Rev. Carl A. Naumann, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Evanston.

"If anything should happen to me my wish is that mother and dad (Mrs. and Mr. Shepherd) should be the beneficiaries of anything I might leave," read a portion of the letter. Judge Olson said this indicated that the Rev. Mr. Naumann had written Billy about taking care of them.

Shepherd admitted that he drew up the will. He said it was done in his office one day shortly before the boy became of age. It was drafted with the date filled in as April 3, 1924. Mc-Clintock died April 5, 1924. It developed, though, through testimony of the witnesses, that it was not signed until April 5, 1924.

The young millionaire wished to be married to Miss Pope during the late summer when he learned he could not finish his course at Dartmouth in another year. Miss Pope had contracted to teach kindergartens during the fall and winter terms and she felt obliged to do so, suggesting that he go to school at least until February, this year, when they planned to wed.

The young man decided to leave a business career, he could make his fortune and he became a student at Bryant & Stratton's business college. Miss Pope began her kindergarten work.

Almost every day the two were together.

McClintock Becomes Ill.

On Sunday evening, Nov. 25, 1924, at Miss Pope's home, Billy was nervous. His sweetheart took his temperature and it was 102½. She insisted he go home and she accompanied him. He never left that sick bed alive.

Miss Pope said that young McClintock asked her to marry him every day she was permitted to see him. She said she finally consented to the sick bed marriage so that she might look after him and accompany him on a trip south during convalescence.

Shepherd admitted he purposely delayed Miss Pope's marriage to his fiancee. He told her she could not procure one unless Billy was also present at the county clerk's office.

She asked if a deputy county clerk couldn't come there and take their signatures and history and issue the license. Shepherd said no. That was before McClintock became unconscious.

Two days later Miss Pope learned she had been informed of the secret between Shepherd and his wife, upon hearing of his removal to the hospital.

The coroner's physicians brought in to typhoid fever. The investigation stumbled for a few days, awaiting the resumption of the inquest, when it was expected a formal verdict of typhoid death would be rendered. Only Judge Olson busted himself about Mc-

Clintock's death.

On Jan. 6 the inquest was resumed.

Judge Olson appeared and demanded to be sworn in as a witness. He told of his reasons for demanding a thorough inquiry into McClintock's death, and the deaths of Mrs. McClintock and Dr. Olson, brother of the judge. He told enough of the circumstances to gain a continuance of the inquest.

He wanted it postponed until Feb. 19, the day after that set for a hearing.

OLSON STARTS QUIZ

Judge Olson called State's Attorney Crowe into conference on Dec. 22, 1924, 1924. He said he was suspicious about McClintock's death, that there were peculiar circumstances pertaining to it, as had been to the death of Mrs. McClintock and Dr. Olson. Assistant State's Attorneys George E. Gorman and Joseph P. Savage began an investigation.

Shepherd and his wife were in Albion Park, N. M. He wired here that his wife had been released.

The Rev. Naumann is as emphatic as Shepherd in protesting Shepherd's innocence.

"Shepherd has been maliciously maligned," he said. "I'm going to let God speak. Surely truth will triumph in the end."

He waved aside Faiman's confession as immaterial.

"I can remember time after time Mr. Shepherd would take Billy out walking. When he got tired my husband would bring him home and we would create to insure its safety through."

Shepherd returned home on Feb. 2 and said the girl was wrong in turning the letters over to the coroner.

He reiterated his threats to sue Judge Olson.

The inquest was resumed on Feb. 12. Judge Olson was in the role of chief inquisitor. He called Shepherd to the witness stand. Shepherd announced he must respectfully refuse to testify. He didn't. Miss Gehling did.

The letters were read into the record. Miss Gehling was promised she would be paid with her testimony.

SARGENT CALLED TYPICAL SON OF A THRIFTY STATE

New Attorney General Is

Boston, Mass., March 17.—[Special.]—When John Garibaldi Sargent of Ludlow, Vt., goes down to Washington to become attorney general of the United States he will out-Dewe even the picturesque vice president, pipe and all, for Sargent is one of those typically Vermont-Vermonters.

He will smoke a long briar in Washington, put his feet upon the finest polished desks in the attorney general's suite and, if he chances to call on his neighbor, "Cal" Coolidge, the President, he will probably sprawl all over the Blue and East, and other rooms in the White House just as he has been accustomed to do at all times in his own offices, at the Vermont state house and wherever else he has been.

From the Granite Hills.

Sargent is by no means uncouth—he is not even rough, but he is a natural product of the state where he was born and has always lived.

John G. Sargent, as he is known throughout his home state and New England, is just plain John G. Sargent. No one ever calls him "Mr." or "squire," or anything like that. He likes to be called "Jawn" and almost every one does greet him by that name.

This afternoon he learned that "Neighbor Cal" had sent his nomination to the Senate at Washington. He was surprised or perturbed. When he finished his business at the office, he tucked his brief case under his arm, took his grip and set out for Ludlow.

Sargent does not talk much about himself. He lives in a rambling fifteen room brick house on the Cavendish road at Ludlow. He was born near there on Oct. 13, 1869. As a boy he worked around the farm where his father plowed the fields and fed the stock.

While he was working his way through college, he became the "Vermont man" by going back to the "Vermont farms where he "worked out" to earn money enough to pay the next year's tuition and expenses at Tufts.

He Knows His New Job.

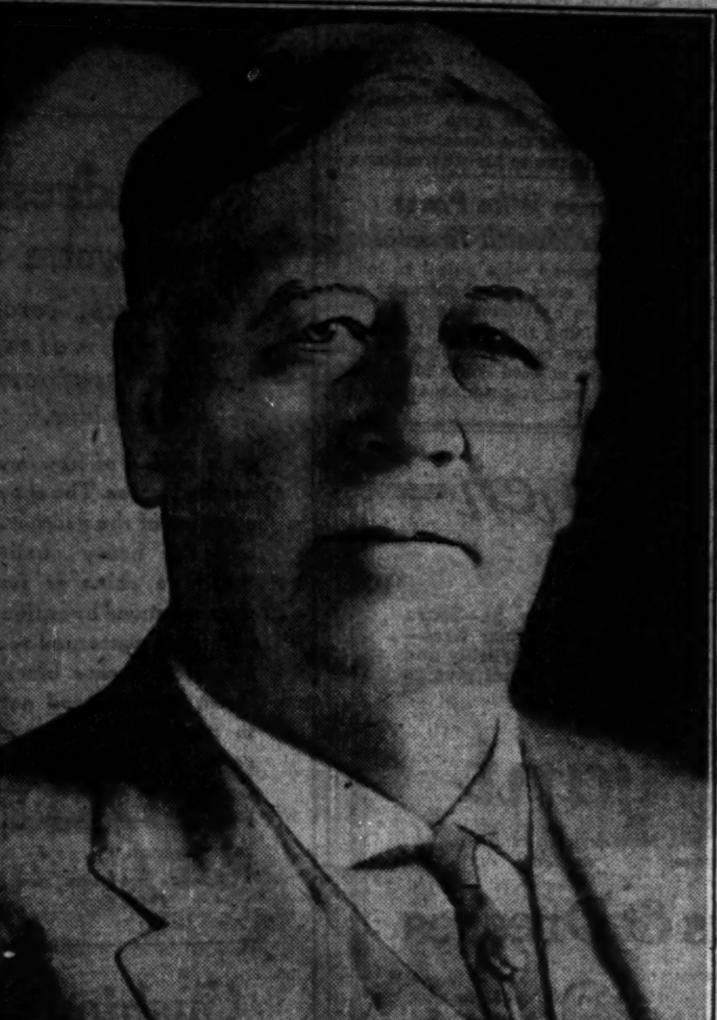

When Washington greets the new attorney general it will be a typical Vermont scene. He will probably wear his broad brimmed hat to work each day just as he does now in Vermont. He knows the law and how to apply it and will probably follow his lifelong rule of "accepting public office if the offer happens to come along the same line as his life work, the law."

Sargent became a full fledged lawyer in 1896. For a time he took care of a small general practice around Windham county. He was elected state's attorney for Windham, and after two years became his present position.

In 1904 the legislature passed a law creating the office of attorney general. Sargent was elected attorney general in 1907 to serve during 1908 and 1909. He was renominated and reelected for the succeeding two year term.

Sargent married Mary Goodwin of Ludlow in 1889. They have one daughter, Mrs. Gladys, wife of Ralph Pearson, a youthful veteran, who is now studying law in his father-in-law's office.

Nominated for Attorney General

John G. Sargent of Vermont, whose name was sent to the Senate by President Coolidge in place of that of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, twice rejected.

WARREN CONTROVERSY LETTERS

Washington, D. C., March 17.—The correspondence between President Coolidge and Charles Warren resulting in Mr. Warren's rejection of a recess appointment follows:

Warren's Reply.

Mr. Warren's reply said:

"Dear Mr. President:

"Your confidence in me was deeply appreciated when you evidenced it by tendering me so important a place in your cabinet. I am again indebted to you for your renewed expressions of confidence in my note of March 16 proposing to tender me a recess appointment as attorney general.

"I shall always like to remember that the political controversy which has arisen concerning this position has not in the least affected your faith in me, and I have been apprised that those who know me fully share in your belief.

"I wish to express my great regret that any action of mine should have brought you into a political controversy. My regret is all the more keen because you made patriotic response when I sought you out, without any action on your part, and asked you again to enter the public service of your country in which on several previous occasions you had already attained great eminence. This disappointment is only modified by the fact that the friends who had refused nomination come to the wrong assertions that they would gladly approve you for any other position of trust and responsibility.

"I am, my dear Mr. President,

"Faithfully yours,

"CHARLES B. WARREN."

ment if the President insisted. As to a substitute nomination he hesitated to pick another man for fear of what he might be subjected to in the senate. In any case, he had not made up his mind.

During this courtesy, the press association men made their awkward dash. Their colleagues apologized for them and the host of the committee was apologetic.

Early in the afternoon the senate's judiciary committee, to which the substitute nomination of Sargent had been referred, held a pleasant smoker over it for an hour. Everybody came out of the smoker beaming—even Norris of Nebraska (Grumbling George) being in a genial mood, and Walsh of Montana showing no signs of a disposition to bite an old line Republican.

In other words, the committee's recommendation that the senate confirm Sargent was unanimous.

Dale Drops Fight.

Good feeling spread, and even Senator Dale of Vermont, who has had some factional difficulties with up in the Green mountains, ordered posted on the bulletin board of the senate press gallery a statement that he was reconciled to the nomination.

The last row was recent, for Sargent tried to have Dale thrown out of the Republican party last spring for his vote to override his nomination.

The moral of the great issue fought out between the senators and the President is: "It is." A determined man, with the best will in the world to do what he thinks it right to do and thinks it his right to do, will set his determination in vain against the determination of the United States senate to nominate him if it conceives to be constitutionally powerless.

Change, hurry, hustle or step on the prerogatives of the United States senate with impunity?

A proud chance!

ANN LUTHER HAS VAMP ROLE IN MAYO DIVORCE

Suit Follows "Surprise Party" for Frank.

New York, March 17.—[Special]—Dagmar Godowsky, screen vamp, staged a surprise party for her husband, Frank Mayo, also a movie star, in the latter's apartment early this morning.

As a result of that surprise Mayo was served with papers for divorce late today. Miss Godowsky names Ann Luther, wife of Ed Gallagher, as correspondent.

There are two versions of the surprise visit, one related by Miss Godowsky and the other by Miss Luther.

Frank in Bathrobe. Claim.

According to Miss Godowsky's story and she is corroborated by private detectives—the wedding party stood in the downstairs foyer and rang the bell of Mayo's apartment. There was no answer. Then they broke down the door.

In one corner of the room, says Miss Godowsky, she saw her husband dressed in nothing more than a bathrobe. And by the window, Dagmar says, she found Ann Luther hastily fastening up her evening dress. Her jewels were on a nearby table.

This story says Ann rushed out of the apartment and down the stairs, two at a time, until she reached the superintendent's apartment on the ground floor.

"I'm dressed," she cried as the janitor peered forth with startled eyes. "You can see I'm dressed, can't you? Come on upstairs with me. I want you to come up with me."

Ann Tells Her Story.

"I've known Frank Mayo for more than nine years," Miss Luther said tonight, "and we have always been good friends. Recently I heard he had become ill from overwork. And early this morning, as any friend would do for another, I called on him at his apartment. Suddenly there came a terrific pounding at the door. Then the door crashed in and I saw Dagmar Godowsky standing there with a number of others. Immediately I realized what had happened. Rushing past them, I ran downstairs to the janitor's apartment in order that he might see that I was fully clothed."

WIFE'S RAID RESULTS IN SUIT

FEDERAL QUIZ WILL FOLLOW WHEAT CRASH

Federal inquiry into why wheat prices have slumped $1 cents in two weeks, here, was opened last night following hysterical selling in the Chicago and Winnipeg pits.

Members of several American grain exchanges complained to Secretary of Agriculture Jardine yesterday that the provisions of the grain futures act are not being enforced here.

It was a wild day in the Chicago pits. Again, as in the sudden drop of last week, fortunes were made and lost. Even Arthur W. Cullen, most optimistic of the grain bulls, is selling now.

Hour of Immense Sales.

The traders heard yesterday that he pouted between eight and nine million bushels into the Winnipeg pit and that he had previously sold out his Chicago holdings.

May wheat fell off here 20 cents in the last two days. Yesterday morning the wildest selling ever seen in the Chicago wheat pit started with the opening of Monday's closing figure of $1.61 falling down to $1.51, but a slight recovery to $1.53 was made before the end of the day.

Records have been written in the last two weeks. The drop of 51 cents is the largest ever seen in such a period in peace times, and precipitated the federal inquiry under J. W. T. Duval, local official of the grain futures act administration.

Florida Bear Breaks Market.

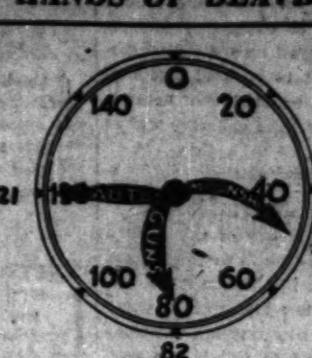

Explanation for the break is that there is a bear pool composed of New York and Chicago operators basing in the sunshine of Florida and doing business by wire, that has sold the entire grain and stock list for several days in an effort to shake out the large holders not in on the pool, as well as the public.

The pool is credited with buying "hides" at about 5,000,000 bushels in Winnipeg on Monday night, good for yesterday, so the longs would have no protection. They got a profit on these trades yesterday and were buying them at a big discount under the market last night.

Chicago operators were credited with selling 9,000,000 bushels in Winnipeg yesterday.

The drop in wheat was accompanied by drastic declines in stocks on both the New York and Chicago stock exchanges. The decline from 100 to 88 points. On the New York exchange the number of new lows for

NEEDED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Senator Norris says that the next good filibuster that is started will be his unless congress adopts the constitutional amendment required to bring in a new congress shortly after the election. The short session of the Sixty-eighth congress recently ended had no filibuster, but it had what was equivalent to several, the threat of them unless bills, including the Muscle Shoals bill, were dropped.

The session which began Dec. 4 and ended March 4 was just such as it is desired to eliminate from American congressional methods. It met a month after the election, but it was not the Congress chosen at the election. It contained members who had been defeated. It did not contain newly elected members.

There has been a special session of the new senate, chiefly notable for the fight over Warren and over Cousens' income tax racket with Secretary Mellon, but if President Coolidge sticks to his present plan and does not call congress, the members elected in November, 1924, will not really be in session until December, 1925, thirteen months after they were elected and only eleven months before the members of the house of representatives and some of the senators have to go into another election.

There isn't any sense in that. It assumes that the people of the United States are traveling in coaches hub deep in the mud, are riding mountain trails or are poiling flat boats on the rivers.

Because of the same assumption we elect a President in November and keep him out of office until March. If he is not succeeding himself the administration marks time and the outgoing President doesn't want to make important decisions and the incoming President can't. The worst stagnation the country had was when Buchanan permitted the southern states to make all preparations for secession as soon as Lincoln was elected and Lincoln could not raise a hand.

The proposal is that the new congress shall meet in the first week of January, following election and that the President and Vice President shall be inaugurated the following week. That is certainly long enough delay. It would give Washington a winter inauguration, but what of it?

American continuity of government is not as well defined and strong as it ought to be. It cannot be so long as it is based on the requirements of a stage coach age. In the early days complications might not arise until a sailing ship had carried news of them across the Atlantic. Now they come hot by wire and the air.

We are not for the filibuster. It violates the principle that a majority should have some way of expressing a decision after properly guarded consideration and debate. It is not advisable to have a majority opposition silenced at any time by the previous question. Cloture needs restrictions, but the filibuster needs a check. Sometimes it breaks down a majority which wants a bad bill, but that is dubious opportunism. The senate probably will have to make its rules conform better to the principle of majority decision. We hope Senator Norris will get the constitutional amendment through without filibustering against the appropriation bills. Amendment correcting the succession faults of the federal government is the only amendment to the constitution now needed.

FOR COMMERCIAL PURPOSES.

The Paris dressmakers are serving cocktails to attract customers and put them in a buying mood. This is half as much a great French discovery.

The French might get the credit but for Mr. Volstead. Once if an American business man had offered a drink to a buyer the bank and Mr. Bradstreet would have heard about it.

Now, if the drink isn't offered, the buyer reports it. He figures the firm he's buying from is on the rocks.

GRATIFIED SOLVENCY.

The filing of tax schedules in the Chicago district shows a greater number of returns over last year and increased tax payments. Mrs. Reinecke, collector of internal revenue, says that the publicity provision probably has stimulated the cash customers. If they are to be gratified they want to be goldfish.

It is possible that some wives feel that they had lost social standing in the block last year when the family income did not seem enviable in the published lists. Some satisfaction in life is in a bright but not gaudy display of solvency. It may be one of the greatest satisfactions of life, explaining expensive cars, the box at the civic opera, the bill at the jeweler's and the tall hat and spats.

No indication of solvency is more convincing than a fat figure in the income tax statement. It is not and never gaudy. It is a modest, almost reluctant and forced confession that the family is doing very well indeed. A small item in the list may indicate a poor year or a good lawyer. The head of the family might be suspected to have a good lawyer, but the wife might have to have it understood that there was a poor year.

People are willing to spend a good deal of money on display to give themselves a proper appearance and here and there a citizen may dig up more income for the government for the same reason that he sends his children to expensive schools, buys his wife pearls and himself an expensive car. Some people will not want to be bad minnows in the goldfish bowl, but the exaltation of being a big fish comes once a year and the collector makes you pay for it four times.

COUZENS AND MELLON.

Mr. Ford was the ambitious Henry of the Wilson administration. It was good to him in the matter of Edsel and the drift board, the Rouge river, the boats and the war profits which were to come back. Mr. Ford wanted to buy out his minority stockholders and they wanted to sell if the government would not take most of the profits in taxes.

Mr. Ford may have obtained a favorable valuation of the stock as of 1913 from Mr. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue under Mr. Wilson. A favorable valuation would be a high one, reducing the difference between the sale price and the price in 1913. On the valuation of $8,000 a share Senator Cousens and the other minority shareholders were willing to sell at $12,500 a share and they paid income tax on the difference.

Secretary Mellon of the treasury department may not have been irritated by Senator Cousens' criticisms of his tax rulings and rebates and compromises, but it was not until after these criticisms that a five year old case was reopened a week before the statute of limitations would have prevented a new ruling and Senator Cousens is presented with a new tax bill for $10,000,000, based on an appraisal that his Ford stock was worth only $2,500 and not $6,400 a share in 1913.

In the senate discussion raised by Senator Cousens' statement of the action taken against him, Senator Glass said that it would be cause of great injustice and tyranny if rulings and appraisals made in one administration could be changed by another.

For five years a taxpayer's schedule is an open account with the government. He does not know at any time within that period whether he is square or not. He does not know when new demands may be made on him, what rulings or interpretations may be changed or what errors allowed. The taxes he pays this year may be challenged within five years of now. The administration may change, but a long rope holds the taxpayer.

The present controversy is between the richest men in the government, one in the senate and the other the head of the treasury department. Here the capitalists are not sticking together on taxes. They do not like each other and they are realising against each other.

Whatever else is involved in the case it shows how unjust it is to carry taxes as an open book for five years, subject to new rulings. Except in cases of fraud the citizen is entitled to clearance within a reasonable period. Otherwise he'll not know from year to year whether he is solvent or broke. There have been many inconspicuous cases of hardship. When bureaucracy gets hold of a citizen it likes to keep its hold.

THE DEVER PLAN IS OPPORTUNITY.

The advocates of the Dever plan sound a note. It is construction. It means subways, elevated extensions, new surface car tracks. The opposition has only the old note, sour twenty years ago. It is obstruction. It has been successful for a generation in keeping Chicago tied down while every other large city in the world has gone ahead. It is an opposition which defies any one to attempt any improvement in transportation.

It prevented subway building years ago. It has prevented the proper development of a comprehensive traction system. It is obstruction now, with the same tom-tomming.

There is hope that the day of this is over and that the city, sick for relief, has had enough of obstruction and wants construction. Chicago asks for a chance to build and move and breathe. It is getting that it will have a boom. It is due for one.

CHICAGO AN AIR PORT.

Chicago's future as an air port is still mostly on paper. But we're getting there.

Maj. Philip G. Kemp, who is chairman of the Chicago aero commission, says we will be assured of one landing field in the suburbs by the summer. The Lincoln park board is awaiting legislative permission to establish another at Grace street and the lake. Two more in Grant park—these will be the useful ones—are being considered by the south park board.

These four fields will provide a serviceable beginning. Grading and equipping them should not be delayed. As was pointed out by Mr. Allen Albert in his talk at the Medill school, the man who laughed at the automobile in 1905 was no bigger fool than the man who laughs at the airplane today.

MOVE THE CAPITAL BACK.

(Springfield Ill.) State Journal.

Senator Randolph Boyd of Galva wants all of the capital of Illinois to be in Springfield. He has introduced a bill in the general assembly to stop the hazing to Chicago. He would have the state provide the buildings necessary to house the departments here and would concentrate the state government where it belongs—at the capital.

In recent years department after department has established headquarters in Chicago. Gradually these departments have expanded their Chicago headquarters until many of them now are elaborate and very costly.

The usual excuse given is that it accommodates some people living in Chicago to have state departments at their elbow. The same argument might be made for locating branches in many of the populous downstate counties. But the truth is the taxpayer is paying the expenses of Chicago people who have business with state departments. That's what the excuse for Chicago branches means. If these branches were not located in Chicago at high rentals and immense pay rolls, Chicago people, with business to be transacted with the state, would have to bear their own expense of a trip to Springfield, or use the mail and telephone. Springfield's selfish interest in this matter is exceedingly small, scarcely more than that of every other community in the state that should protest against the excessive taxation to which they are subjected for the accommodation and the financial benefit of a few Chicago people who have business with state departments.

TUBERCULOSIS GOLD CURE.

LETTERS continue to come in relating to sanatoriums or Molgaard treatment of tuberculosis. Many of those who write are anxious to try the treatment. The treatment is not generally available and it may not be for some time. Molgaard has submitted a limited quantity to Dr. McCoy of the United States public health service, who will doubtless give it an extensive laboratory trial, and to Dr. Lincoln Williams of the National Tuberculosis Association, who will conduct trials for it with animals and men. A few other physicians have secured very limited quantities for purposes of trial.

Molgaard has asked Dreyer and other experienced men in Great Britain to make a similar investigation. It is also probable that similar bodies in various countries of continental Europe are making parallel investigations. In the meantime, however, it is difficult to predict what will happen. It will help to be patient. To know that the sanatorium treatment is safe is the best guarantee.

When a consumptive is injected with sancrocin he has a rise of fever, his cough gets worse, and he develops Bright's disease. At least, such would be the case in a violent reaction. This reaction, Molgaard thinks, is due to polarization released from the bodies of killed bacteria.

Experiments were done on many animals of different sizes, including many large animals, before it was tried on human beings. In trying it on human beings the preference was given to Lincolns Williams of the National Tuberculosis Association, who will conduct trials for it with animals and men.

SON-IN-LAW OF FALL FORCES U.S. TO HALT OIL SUIT

Rests Case After He Refuses to Testify.

Boys, Wyo., March 17.—[By Associated Press.]—With its battle for annulment of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve accomplished, the government, late today, rested its case with the contention that it had proved the existence of a conspiracy between Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of the oil field.

The Journal of A. B. Fall, banker, and son-in-law of Fall, to testify today, caused government counsel to rest its case without calling the former cabinet official to the stand, Owen J. Roberts said tonight.

"If I had been able to glean any information from Everhart connecting me with the passage of bonds between Sinclair and himself I would have called him immediately and put the direct question to him as a matter of record," Mr. Roberts said. "Otherwise there was no reason for placing Mr. Fall under oath. I had no desire to call him just merely to see him take the stand."

Defense Strikes Back.

Striking back at the moment the government rested, J. W. Lacey of counsel for defense—the Mammoth Oil company—asked the court to wipe out of the record all evidence regarding the alleged debts of Liberty bonds from the Continental Refining Company, said by the government to have been organized for the benefit of Sinclair and others, to Fall, on the ground that nothing in the government's evidence had connected Sinclair or the Mammoth Oil company with the Liberty bond transactions.

Mr. Lacey's objection was overruled.

The result will be, according to defense attorneys, that only witnesses to disprove the government's charge that the $25,000 loaned by Sinclair to Fall, late in 1923, seventeen months after the execution of the Teapot lease, was given the former interior secretary for "favors" previously accorded the millionaire oil magnate, will be called. Under government testimony it was alleged that this $25,000 was received to the credit of Fall and deposited in a bank at El Paso, Tex.

Another part of the government's testimony to be combated by the defense will be that in which it was charged that the lease was executed in secrecy and that attempts were made to keep it from being publicly announced.

Before closing its case the government introduced into the record a dozen or more documents, including records of bond transactions in New York and bond deposits in banks at New York and El Paso, Tex.

Judge Kennedy in questioning defense counsel as to the importance of the Liberty bond evidence, inferred that he would assume that the major issue remaining in the case would be the argument of counsel over the question of the legality of the executive order by President Harding transferring the Wyoming oil reserve from the navy department to the interior department for leasing purposes.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without gripping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the true cause after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Elmer Misses Irish Music in Programs

And the Day's Offerings Rather Disappoint Him.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Seems to me the sons and daughters of Erin failed to rally around it to give their deserved yearning saintly a really worthy birthday commemoration. There were Irish celebrations here and there, but, with one or two possible exceptions, there were no genuine imported Shamrock programs audible. Irish music is distinctive and of great lyric beauty, and the failure to hear much of it leaves the writer with a feeling of disappointment.

This listener spent from 5:30 to 7 with W-G-N, through Skeets' star shooting time; Edwin Seder's polyphone organ recital and the symphonic concert by the Drake concert ensemble and Blackstone string quintet. These are always good, celebratory days or otherwise.

The half hour after 7 was with WHEEL where the vocal duets by Ruth Williams and Ennis Forster, soprano, and a string trio program were just a little different and something new for this station.

At 8:15 the Brunswick music memory contest from KYW. There was an effort here to make this something of an Irish program; at any rate, Announcer Andrew White painted it over with atmospheric colorings from the emerald Isle. And much of this concert made one long for a realization of the musical scenes and lands depicted. The contralto "from Michigan" (an identification earmark) is a rare vocalist, whoever she is.

The 8:30 to 9 W-G-N was made up of Ireland, and in Dan Tully's words had a touch of home news bringing forth some smooth flowing descriptive words of praise for his Irish songs. Musically the most of this program was comparatively light.

From 9:30 to nearly 10:30 KYW was broadcasting an address by Admiral William S. Benson before the Irish Fellowship club at the Congress hotel. There was a pretty good St. Patrick's day concert at WMAG. 9:15 to 10. Charles Lutton, a concert baritone, with a deep voice of great beauty and under remarkable control, furnished the heavy portion, and the now well known Frederick Daw and Russell Pratt, "the men of a thousand and one songs," furnished the lighter entertainment.

While these programs were going on I was trying to unravel a mystery at KDKA, Pittsburgh. It was some special broadcast, with an audience in a hall or auditorium, but the speeches were slow, long drawn out, and uninteresting, despite one of them being a "senator." Suddenly tuning them in at 10:20 . . . pause . . . Announcer: "This concludes the address in connection with the Bankers' club dinner at Richmond, Va."

From 10:30 to 11:35 Ambrose Wick, the "silver toned" tenor, and Announcer Jerry Sullivan gave a distinctly St. Patrick's day program at WQJ. They seemed much at home in this music. Seems to me neither voice was ever heard to better advantage, which means that this was a real Irish musical house. Let's close with the words of a certain unknown: "I'd like to live in Ireland if they brought it over here."

ALSACE SCHOOL STRIKE WEAKENS; CHILDREN RETURN

PARIS, March 17.—The Alsace and Lorraine school strike as a protest against Premier Herriot's order for interdenominational schools apparently was broken today when thousands of children in the principal towns of the "lost provinces" returned to their classrooms after abstaining themselves yesterday in response to the religious leaders' exhortations.

About 20 per cent of the pupils were still absent today, however, more than half were absent yesterday.

Nationalist deputies and priests throughout the region continue to demand that parents keep their children out of school until M. Herriot restores religious schools and the French embassy at the Vatican, and they call on the people to begin a passive resistance against the French government at Paris.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Wednesday, March 18.)

ON W-G-N PROGRAM

A GROUP of movie stars will entertain this afternoon over W-G-N. The radio program originated on the Drake hotel. Bryant Washburn, Ruth Landis, Anna May Wong, Cullen Landis, Ennis Forster, Carl Miller, Harry Tighe, and Jack Daugherty are to appear at the Davis store fashion show, from which W-G-N is broadcasting daily at 8:30.

In addition to the songs and stories by the movie stars, there will be a five minute lecture from the nature experts at the Davis store by Dr. V. A. Lathan of the Illinois Microscopic Society on "A Trip Through Nature with the Microscope."

The 8 to 9 hour will find W-G-N offering a concert of Hungarian folk music by William M. Molinare, tenor; Wendell Kalman Kolostany, violinist, and Julius Natalesky, pianist. They will be preceded by the Drake Concert ensemble and the Blackstone String quintet, playing between 8 and 9.

At 9:30 the Brunswick music memory contest from KYW. New Elks Home at Newark, N. J. One of more than a thousand buildings owned by Elks throughout the country.

A known audience

ADVERTISERS spend a lot of money every year to talk to people about their wares. It ought to be worth a lot of money to any advertiser to know exactly who he is talking to; just the kind of folks they are.

There's where the Elks Magazine makes a big hit with intelligent advertisers. It goes each month to 850,000 men and their families. They're the kind of men and families that most advertisers would like to talk to; business men, professional men, men with homes; men interested in civic and social welfare in their communities; men interested in, and stimulated by, the activities of their fellow members in other parts of the country.

Several hundred thousand of the men who get the Elks Magazine are retail merchants. The manufacturer who advertises can't reach them in any better way than in the pages of this magazine.

It's a good magazine first; and an Elks Magazine afterward.

U.S. OF EUROPE URGED AS CLEAR ROAD TO PEACE

Czech Foreign Minister
Fosters Plan.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
PARIS, March 17.—The creation of a United States of Europe, divided into two groups, was a scheme proposed to Premier Harriet today by Dr. Edward Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia.

M. Benes suggested a western bloc to include England, France, Belgium, and Germany, and an eastern lineup with Poland, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Austria, and other central countries. Italy could choose whether to be in the eastern or western group, and Spain could be included in the western group.

Such a combination of two blocs, ultimately allied through political and diplomatic interlocking relations, will preserve roughly the balance of power and be a best guarantee against war, according to Dr. Benes.

World End Economic Barriers.

The ministers says economic, commercial, and financial barriers between states and members of the groups will be removed, tariffs will be reduced to a minimum, roads will be assured through an easement of railway, ship, post, and transportation regulations and business will be booming through an amelioration of passport and police control difficulties.

Dr. Benes estimates that Europe will save 50 per cent of the present budgets expended on the upkeep of armies, navies, and aviation, and will be able to halve the number of state employees through cutting and eliminating the huge amount of red tape which will not be necessary when relations are friendly and the nations are practically federated.

M. Herriot is understood to have considered M. Benes' ideas as Utopian, unlikely, and impossible of realization within the near future. The Tribune is informed that M. Herriot assured both Dr. Benes and Dr. Miklos, Polish foreign minister, that France will look after the interests of Czechoslovakia and Poland in any negotiations with Great Britain regarding a security pact, and that it will insist that recognition of Germany's eastern frontiers are as inviolable as the western.

Such a combination of two blocs, ultimately allied through political and diplomatic interlocking relations, will give France the security it demands and allow a settlement in Europe.

A ticklish situation has arisen over the evacuation of Cologne. The British are publicly pledged to evacuate it at the earliest possible moment, but it is believed that the French do not want to give up Cologne until Germany is safely in the league.

It is feared, however, that Germany may refuse to apply for league membership until the allies fulfill their promises to evacuate Cologne, thus causing an impasse. The matter will be raised in the house of lords tomorrow by Lord Parmoor.

Belgium Studies German Offer.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BRUSSELS, March 17.—Paul Hyman, Belgian foreign minister, after long consultation acquainting Premier Thonin and the cabinet with the results of the Geneva council meeting, told Taxazione:

"We consider Germany's proposals for a guarantee pact worthy of most serious consideration, and we are studying them attentively."

"Belgium believes it highly desirable that Germany join the league as an ally of peace, but on condition that she enter without special consideration."

PUSH SECURITY DEAL

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, March 17.—Austen Chamberlain returned to London this evening from Paris, where he met the cabinet and to report on the talks with M. Herriot and his talks with Premier Harriet in Paris. It is expected that within a day or two of diplomatic conversations will begin through the usual channels, trying to work out some substitute for the Geneva protocol which will give France the security it demands and allow a settlement in Europe.

A ticklish situation has arisen over the evacuation of Cologne. The British are publicly pledged to evacuate it at the earliest possible moment, but it is believed that the French do not

The picaresque life story—thrilling, funny, adventurous—of the world's greatest prize fighter. . . . the King of Fistiana. . . . his keen Irish wit. . . . and the amazing exploits that made him the greatest sporting character of all time. . . . begins in Liberty—out today. . . . at all newsstands, 30c

Who knew the keen wit, the odd humor, of John L. Sullivan, the most picturesque of all sporting characters? Joe Dorney, Sullivan's personal friend and manager for years—the one man in a position to know the real John L.—together with Sid Sutherland, noted sports writer—have written a remarkably thrilling and funny story of the life of Sullivan. It begins in this week's Liberty.

They tell this one about him when he visited England, and was introduced to the Prince of Wales: John L., shaking him warmly by the hand, growled in his deep bass voice: "Pleased to meecha Prince, I've heard of you before." But that was typical of his "crust." He was always knocking the plug hat off the "ritz" and putting it on his own head. . .

He was unquestionably the most mirth-provoking, magnetic and fascinating sporting character of all time. Millions aires in their clubs wagered fortunes on him; the fight fan got a daily roar out of some quirk or other; school boys idolized him. . . . The public marveled at his ability to stand up for as many as 75 rounds of bare fist fighting.

Every man, woman, boy and girl will enjoy this vivid biography. It reads on more absorbingly than any tale of adventure. Be sure to begin it in this week's Liberty, out today. Many other excellent stories by Edna Ferber, the famous novelist, Brenda Ueland, Frank Condon, and other noted writers also appear in this same issue, at all newsstands, 5 brilliant short stories . . . Patricia Patterns . . . Fashions

. . . Household Hints . . . Crossword Puzzles . . . and a $50,000 Movie Idea Contest!

This variety of appeal has played the major part in Liberty's whirlwind trip to the million mark. And 99½% of Liberty's weekly sale is newsstand. No premiums to subscribers, no clubbing offers, no price-cutting or other circulation crutches. It takes unfailing editorial precision to stand, week after week, this acid test!

Liberty fits the times! More than a year prior to the first issue Liberty editors which he—or she—reads. Back of this analysis stood 77 years of successful publishing. Out of this analysis came Liberty's editorial plan. Subject matter, treatment, physical appearance, type of appeal, makeup—so well conform to present day needs that in ten months' time a million copies of Liberty are receiving weekly welcome.

Liberty is written as the average American lives. Liberty fiction is vigorous, concise, and lively—but it is clean. Its articles on sports, politics, questions of the day, etc., mesh with the problems and ambitions common to all of us. Advertising in Liberty surrounds a product with more selling influence, because Liberty is enjoyed by the whole family—the buying unit of today.

Liberty's makeup means greater visibility. Every story or article is completed before another is begun. There are no "carry-overs" into an advertising jungle in the back. This makeup is far more expensive — but it means thorough reading. It makes the advertiser do more work!

LONDON SOCIETY SCANDALS STIR UP PARLIAMENT

"High Life" Revealed in Three Courts.

tous's love nest at Bexhill, where Señor Bolin spent numerous hours as soon as he had left the hotel. Once Señor Bolin hid in a little hall way when the gentry arrived unexpectedly until Mrs. Dennistoun got rid of the unwelcome intruder. The maid told how Mrs. Dennistoun did a "Walter Raleigh" and she placed a toothy pink silk dressing gown on the waxed floor so the persons on the floor below would not hear Señor Bolin's footsteps. In the bedroom, Señor Bolin and Mrs. Dennistoun occupied separate rooms in the Ritz hotel, Paris. Once Mrs. Dennistoun, clad in a night gown, left her room on the sixth floor to visit Señor Bolin's room on the fifth floor. Marguerite warned her that she was "playing with fire."

Enlarging on her story of the Paris episode, the witness said:

"Mrs. Dennistoun was on the sixth floor, Bolin on the fifth, and Col. Dennistoun, who was ill, was in a room poorer than my own maid's room." In Barcelona and other places the pair occupied adjoining rooms, with communicating doors. Mrs. Dennistoun told Marguerite her husband was a "sweet man, but I do not like him as a husband—I love him like a brother."

Carried American's Picture.

The maid said Mrs. Dennistoun had a picture of Oscar Senhouse, an American who was later killed in Flanders, on her dressing table and another in a locket. She declared Mrs. Dennistoun would have eloped with Senhouse if he had not died.

Marguerite declared she was testifying because Mrs. Dennistoun harmed her, telling her next employer Marguerite was a "dangerous woman—get her out of your house."

ERNEST P. BICKNELL, CHICAGOAN, ACCEPTS POST WITH LEAGUE

GENEVA, March 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Ernest P. Bicknell of Chicago has accepted membership in the preparatory commission appointed by the League of Nations to study the international problem to afford relief to people stricken by calamities like the Japanese earthquake. Mr. Bicknell is vice president of the American Red Cross.

E. P. BICKNELL.

Waterhouse home, Lady Wilson-Barker frequently slept on another and was visited there by Waterhouse, Mills' deposition said.

"Mrs. Waterhouse used to go to bed early," he was quoted as saying, "then Mr. Waterhouse would go to bed, but would visit Lady Wilson-Barker's room an hour and a half on the way."

Noted Surgeon a Witness.

Among the witnesses is Sir Herbert Waterhouse, a noted surgeon, and a cousin of the dead man. Sir Herbert's list of initials after his name for degrees, honors and decorations is so lengthy that the judge halts the half hour through the reading of them.

Sir Herbert is the chief witness in support of the claim that R. P. Sheldon, 74 years old, who received an allowance of $1,500 a year from the mother of Mr. Waterhouse, confessed that he aided Lady Wilson-Barker in the blackmail scheme.

Just before the adjournment Justice Shearman again urged a settlement outside of court, indicating that the future hearings of the case will reveal difficulties in distinguishing as to hurtful public morals.

Today's cases occupied almost the entire front pages of all the papers, with the verbatim testimony taking up more than half the total news space.

F. M'LAUGHLIN'S SISTER SERIOUSLY ILL IN FLORIDA

Mrs. Florence Lewis, wife of Fred Thomas H. M'Laughlin, millionaire coffee man, is dangerously ill at her winter home in St. Augustine, Fla., where she and her husband are spending the winter.

Lady Wilson-Barker and Mr. Waterhouse carried on a passionate intrigue after Mrs. M'Laughlin went to Florida for a short vacation.

In 1912 he met Lady Wilson-Barker at their hotel and introduced her to his mother. The women became the greatest of friends. Mrs. Waterhouse writing numerous affectionate letters to the younger woman.

Lady Wilson-Barker and Mr. Waterhouse carried on a passionate intrigue after Mrs. M'Laughlin went to Florida for a short vacation.

The news of her illness was received yesterday by Miss M. D. Sibley of Evanston. The telegram stated that Mrs. Lewis is suffering from a disease of the brain.

The announcement of her condition was made following a consultation between Dr. Walter Dandy, brain expert of Johns Hopkins university of Baltimore, Md.; Dr. Ralph Green of Jacksonville, Fla., and the attending physician, John Fogarty of St. Augustine.

The doctor's wife became ill last November. The family went to Florida two months ago to spend the winter. Her Chicago residence is at 2356 Commonwealth avenue.

The story of the alleged discovery of her husband's secret was fiction, invented by the consummate actress in order to frighten Mr. Waterhouse into paying. The evidence will show that Mr. Waterhouse, particularly in 1913, 1914, and 1915, was reduced to a state of absolute terror. We have found letters in Lady Wilson-Barker's handwriting supposedly placating the non-existent blackmailer. The lady holds 289 letters from Mr. Waterhouse and also sixty-four which she refuses to produce on the grounds of incriminating herself for criminal prosecution."

Describes Bedroom Scene.

The deposition of Mills, the Waterhouse butler, who died recently, said Lady Wilson-Barker frequently visited the Waterhouse home, ostensibly to see Waterhouse's mother, but that Waterhouse frequently visited Lady Wilson-Barker's home. The butler said he frequently had seen them in bed together.

The butler, who was in the Waterhouse service for fifty-one years, confided his master's secret only upon his deathbed.

While Mrs. Waterhouse, who is a cripple, slept on one floor of the Wa-

SCHOOL TRUSTEES DEBATE RAISING PAY $28,000,000

That's 5 Year Estimate on New Scale.

To meet the proposed salary increase for public school teachers will require nearly $28,000,000 in the next five years, the board of education was informed yesterday by Nelson B. Henry, secretary of the finance committee.

The board sat as a committee of the whole to consider the $65,000,000 budget for 1925, but no action was taken.

To put the new schedule into effect this year would cost $1,456,000, increasing to $8,552,000 a year by 1929. The present schedule calls for an expenditure of $1,000,000 in each of the three years.

ERIN FOREGOES CUP IN HONOR OF ST. PATRICK

DUBLIN, March 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Ireland was dry today, St. Patrick's day, in every sense of the word. The crowds of holiday makers were never greater, and no complaint was made of the absence of all drinking facilities. The conflict in parliament which had no reflection in public opinion, which apparently approved the victory of the senate for dryness.

All the drink shops were closed, and no drink could be obtained in hotels except by residents. In some suburban districts the temporary dry law was modified by the exemption of bona fide travelers.

Drinks for Travelers.

Any one who travels three miles can get a drink between certain hours on Sunday, and the point whether St. Patrick's day could be counted as a Sunday or should be held dry was decided in different districts, according to the various interpretations of the latest liquor act. Even where the interpretation was lax there were no cases of drunkenness.

Ten years ago it was a point of political principle to avoid drinking on St. Patrick's day, and the Sinn Fein movement persuaded publicans to close voluntarily. Recent years have abolished this practice, and legislation this year decreed compulsory closing. Objection BELFAST, March 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Business as usual marked St. Patrick's day in northern Ireland, although government offices and banks were closed.

BOOTLEGERS PLEAD GUILTY BEFORE WOMEN

Seventeen outraged bootleggers from Gov. John Shultz's home town, Kansas City, faced a federal jury in Judge W. C. Lindley's court in Danville yesterday and announced they would fight to the last ditch.

Then, while the first witnesses were being called, fifty church women from Kankakee, all with white ribbons, entered the courtroom and announced that they would remain in Danville during the trial.

One bootlegger then pleaded guilty, then the other sixteen followed. Sentence will be passed later.

IRISH SOCIETIES CELEBRATE DAY OF ST. PATRICK

The merchant marine saves the United States from being a prey to a foreign shipping monopoly," Rear Adm. Benson, retired, told the 1,500 members of guests at the St. Patrick dinner and ball of the International club last night at the Congress hotel.

The former chief of operations for the United States navy declared that American merchants should send their goods in American ships. He said it was a function of the government to keep trade routes open.

"We must be assured transportation from American ports to foreign ports," he declared.

More than 300 members and guests of the Cook county board of the American Council of Elksmen celebrated last night with a dinner and ball in the Hotel La Salle.

Mayor William E. Dever was present and Judge Kickham Scanlan, the Rev. Michael Sullivan, Bishop Edward F. Hoban, and State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe spoke.

COMPULSORY SCHOOLING TO BE VOIDED, BELIEF

Washington, D. C., March 17.—The concluding oral arguments in the Supreme court on the constitutionality of the Oregon law requiring children between 6 and 16 years of age to attend state schools brought further questions from justices today, which indicated to an intensely interested audience that contentions in behalf of the act were meeting with little success.

The argument for the state, which is appealing from decisions enjoining enforcement of the law obtained in the federal District court for Oregon last October, was presented by the Society of Sisters of St. Francis of Mary, and the Hillside academy, were presented by W. S. Moore, assistant attorney general of Oregon, former Senator George E. Chamberlain, and A.

H. Putney, while the parochial and private schools were represented by William D. Guthrie, J. P. Kavanaugh, and John C. Veach.

If the court should take jurisdiction in the case and uphold the decision of the lower court, counsel for the state asserted that a constitutional amendment would be proposed to give states complete control over education of children. They argued, however, that, having decided that the states have control over the labor of children, the Supreme court, in such a decision, must go a step further and declare they already possess a similar right to control education.

which were touched upon in the opening arguments yesterday, were enlarged upon today, the two sides disagreeing completely as to the effects of the law in these respects.

The state agreed that, should private or parochial schools be able to show that the new public school law violated their rights, there was a federal question, but the state maintained that no such showing had been made, and that therefore the state must be permitted to solve the question.

JUDGE WALKER COMES TO BAR AS A PRISONER

Demands a Jury Trial;
Haffa His Accuser.

Municipal Judge Henry M. Walker and two bailiffs assigned to his Chicago avenue police court—Henry Bornhut and William D. Beatty—were arrested yesterday on warrants accusing them of assaulting Titus Haffa, Barrett-Crowe committeeman in the Forty-third ward.

They were released on their own recognizance until Friday morning, when they declared last night, they will demand a jury trial.

Climax of Court Row.

The warrants issued by Judge William Lindsay in the Criminal court, are the culmination of Judge Walker's row with Haffa and Ald. Stanley Adamkiewics [list], who assert they were rudely ejected from the Chicago avenue courtroom on March 10.

Haffa declares he was denounced from the bench as a professional brawler, Ald. Alderman a fixer before being condemned, and Ald. Adamkiewics asserts that as he was being dragged from the courtroom, Judge Walker shouted loudly that "aldermen and bums look alike to me."

Convinced that Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal court will ignore the city council's recommendation that he conduct an inquiry into Judge Walker's sanity, Adamkiewics announced that he is preparing to ask County Judge Edmund Jaroski to order Walker to the psychopathic hospital for observation. Judge Jaroski indicated yesterday that he will seriously consider Adamkiewics' petition when it is presented.

Judge Appears as Prisoner.

Immediately after he had disposed of the day's cases before him, Judge Walker appeared in Judge Lindsay's court to accept service of the warrants which he had been warned were issued against him. The judge is charged with conspiring with the two bailiffs to commit an assault on Haffa, while the bailiffs are charged with assault and battery.

"I am at a disadvantage because I must keep silent and uphold the dignity of the court," declared Judge Walker. "If it were not for that, I'd burn Haffa and his bunch in a hurry. Haffa makes a nuisance of himself advising persons to take a jury trial."

FEAR CLASS WAR IN ITALY OVER METAL STRIKE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service]

ROME, March 17.—A serious conflict, fraught with grave danger of class war, broke out in the industrial zone of north Italy today when the federation of labor, which cooperated with the Facchetti labor union during the metal workers' strike, announced that its members would not accept the wage settlement effected yesterday.

Only 4,000 metal workers returned to their Milan factories, while the strikers succeeded in calling out 25,000 employees of the Fiat automobile works in Turin.

The labor unionists claim the Fascisti leaders sold out too easily.

The Fascist labor union leader, Sig. Ranza, issued a threatening ultimatum to the socialists and labor unionists, who refuse to return to work.

PERU ANGERED BY COOLIDGE AWARD ON TACNA-ARICA

Washington, D. C., March 17.—Peruvian dissatisfaction over President Coolidge's recent award in the Tacna-Arica arbitration has mounted to such disquieting proportions that there is much sober speculation here as to what turn the situation eventually may take.

The American embassy at Lima already is under a special guard of Peruvian soldiers after one assault from a crowd of anti-American demonstrators; Herman Velarde, the Peruvian ambassador in Washington, is said to be on the verge of departing for home, and the Peruvian president has accused President Coolidge of unjustly favoring Chile in his award.

Report Clash with Chile Troops.

STRANGLER WINS FROM DRAAK IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Applying the head lock in his customary manner, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, who still claims the world's heavy eight championship, defeated Tommy Draak, the Hollander, in straight falls in the main event of the wrestling show at the Coliseum last night.

Lewis won the first fall in 22:05 with a head lock and the second in 4:45 by means of the same hold. Only once during the two falls was Lewis in danger, and that was in the first, when Draak secured a toe hold near the ropes and was compelled to release the lock at the order of referee Harry, who claimed Ed was outside of the ring.

Draak Gets Rough.

Lewis showed well defensively and applied the head lock in his old time form when he was ready to pin his man.

In the second fall, Draak started roughing it with the title claimant. Lewis took it without resistance.

In fact, only once did Lewis retaliate with a wild swing and this missed its mark.

The Hollander, however, paid the penalty by being flattened shortly afterward with Lewis' favorite lock.

Although the Lewis-Draak match was billed as a straight falls affair between "deaf" Toots" Mondt and Mike Romano, Mondt with action while it lasted.

Mondt won the fall and match in 22:56 with his famous Japanese jack-knife hold.

Romano, however, had the cowboy in several dangerous positions but was unable to gain a fall.

Mondt Kicked in Face.

The only fall came after Romano had dashed the cowboy by kicking him in the face while Mondt was trying to apply a toe hold.

Toots got his feet in a dazed condition, but had presence of mind enough to secure his hold from a standing position.

Romano broke it after a great effort, but Mondt again gained the fall from the same position and the Italian was fastened for one of the few times in his career.

John Peasek, the German, this man, lived up to his name by winning over Joe Komar in a one fall match.

Although his opponent was at least forty pounds heavier, Peasek handled him in a clever manner and finally made Komar concede the fall with a toe lock after they had been on the mat 22:45.

In the opening bout Jack Sherry took a one fall match from Vic Soldner with a cradle hold in 17:23.

Munn Unable to Appear.

About $200 fans paid approximately $7,000 to see the show, but a few expressed disappointment when it was announced Wayne Munn did not appear to accept Lewis' challenge.

A telegram from Manager Gabe Kaufmann stated the grappler was unable to secure a release from a theatrical engagement in Memphis.

SCHIKAT WORKING

Richard Schikat, the German grappler, who is rated one of the best foreign wrestlers who has come to this country, is now engaged training yesterday at Muller's for his match with Charles Eustace of Wakefield, Mass., at the Broadway armory on Monday night.

The show will be staged by the 2020-most artillery and the main events will be supported by three other contests to be announced this week.

Eustace and Schikat met at a recent Coliseum show and at the end of five-and-a-half minutes the bout was called a draw with neither having a decided advantage.

John Peasek and Joe "Toots" Mondt, who appeared at the Coliseum show last night, will resume training today at Muller's for their bouts at the Star and Garter on Friday night. Peasek is slated to tangle with Charley Byrd and Mondt will take holds with Antonio Felice, an Italian heavyweight.

We approve awarding points to five placed men, but would like to see the winner of an event receive a greater margin toward his team total.

MEMPHIS MAT SHOW ENDS IN FISTIC BATTLE

Memphis, Tenn., March 17.—(Special.)—The death knell was tolled for the wrestling game in Memphis to night, and like the man who killed the goat that laid the golden egg, wrestlers have killed their own game or at least have put it to sleep.

A disgraceful demonstration by a rival gang of grapplers at the exhibition of Wayne "Big" Munn, the champion, at the Auditorium was the cause.

Apparently well laid plans, with

Wladyslaw Eyzagirre and George Katsenaros, wrestlers, as the tools, came near break-

Eyzagirre, first and then Katsenaros

PAAVO, ILL., CLIPS 3 MARKS AS RAY EQUALS RECORD

New York, March 17.—[Special.]—Saidly after Paavo Nurmi had dropped out of one race tonight, owing to cramps, after breaking three world's records, Joe Ray of the Illinois A. C. ran the greatest race of his career and took the spot-light.

Ray came into his own in the one mile race, the second of the night's feature events at the Knights of Columbus Garden at Madison Square Garden. Nurmi was entered for this race, but was under doctor's care after his faltering in the first event.

William Springs Wins.

Joe flashed his flying heels in the race of Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A., mid-distance star, and Jim Connolly, former Georgetown runner. Ray sped to victory in 4:12, equaling the world's indoor record set recently by the incomparable Paavo. Ray, with a dazzling sprint over the last lap, fought off a desperate challenge by Hahn to win by four yards. Connolly was a hand beaten third. Willie Ritols also started in this race, but was out of the contention from the start.

Ray demonstrated that had Nurmi started he would have forced the great Finn to better than a 4:12 mile. Ray did all his running over the closing three laps. As he finished the eighth dropt the daughter of the Chicagoan grand and dashed from second position to the van. It required a Nurmi to question Ray's supremacy, and Nurmi was unavailable.

Nurmi suffered his first defeat in an important scratch race when he fell before nature. After running thirty laps on his journey of thirty-four in the special 5,000 meter race Paavo suddenly stopped dead in his tracks, permitting Ritols, at the time close to the lead, to be well pointed for the top of his form.

The gallant son of Whisk Broom II, performed so impressively in the derby that even greater things are predicted of him. Some of the good judges of thoroughbreds here declare he has an excellent chance in the Kentucky Derby.

Whisk Broom II, son of Hedge Fense, was the champion of his day. He won the Metropolitan, Suburban, and Brooklyn in one year. Hedge Fense greatly resembles his illustrious sire.

COAST EXPERTS GIVE HEDGE FENCE CHANCE IN KENTUCKY DERBY

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 17.—[Special.]—Quatrains, Frederick S. Johnson's three year old son of Omar Khayyam-Bonnie May, favorite in the Kentucky Derby future book, won the Louisiana Derby at Jefferson park this afternoon. He simply outclassed his company and finished four lengths ahead of Benedict Vow, one of Col. E. R. Bradley's horses in the big race.

The value of the purse to the winner was $17,550. The start was good and Quatrains shot to the front at once, close followed by Benedict Vow. Brave Bob hung in this place as they raced down to the first quarter pole where Quatrains held the lead by a nose. At the half he had increased this lead over Benedict Vow to a length and a half and Benedict Vow was a head in front of Brave Bob. At the three-quarters the positions were the same.

Quatrains Increases Lead.

As they swung into the stretch Jockey Harry Stutts, who had been brought here by Johnson to ride his pride, gave the big horse his head and he increased the lead to two lengths over Benedict Vow, who also made gains in front of Brave Bob, who was four lengths in front of Stirrup Cup. Down the stretch they came in this order with 15,000 persons, the greatest crowd that ever attended a race at Jefferson park, shouting for Quatrains. The Johnson colt steadily increased his lead and won by a good four lengths. Benedict Vow was second and Brave Bob third by four lengths. Stirrup Cup was fourth.

The winner was held at slightly less than 1 to 3 to win, 1 to 6 to place and was out to show. Benedict Vow, coupled with Brave Bob and Buttercup in the 1000-meter race, secured even money to place and 2 to 5 to show, while Brave Bob paid 8 to 5 to show. The fractional time he is still at the top of his form.

Quatrains has started here six times during the winter and has beaten but once, when he finished third. Since then he has never been headed. Adolphus and Elises defeated him, the three being noses apart in a six-furlong race.

It will be remembered that Black Gold, last year's winner of the Kentucky Derby, met with just such racing luck as Quatrains. Black Gold was beaten in his first race as a 3 year old and then came ahead and swept everything before him, taking the Louisville, Kentucky, Chicago, and other Derbys. Quatrains will be kept here for a short time before being shipped north.

Quatrains Keeps On Trying.

But Nurmi's admirable courage would not let him quit without trying another whiff of the Kentucky Derby track. Nurmi, with his hands gripping his stomach, teeth gritted, and a grim determination written all over his face, started off again, this time in the rear of Ritols for the first time in the race. Nature was taking its toll, however, and all the gameness in the world could not avail. After completing another three-quarters of a lap Nurmi staggered off the boards and into his dressing room.

Nurmi was found to be suffering from acute distension of the stomach, a complaint which practically paralyzed his lower extremities, and must have made it torture for the great Finnish star to go as far as he did in what was advertised as "the race of the not already licensed."

But He Breaks Three Marks.

To the fact that he had partaken of a hearty meal in which veal was the principal dish at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was attributed the sudden pain which overtook Nurmi.

Before withdrawing, however, Nurmi shattered the records for 4,000 yards, 4,000 meters, and 2 1/2 miles. Nurmi, leading Ritols from the outset of the race, displaced the old record of 16:51-5 held by Ritols. At 4,000 meters the official watches caught the Flying Finn in the new record time of 11:32-4 seconds, which displaced the old mark of 11:30-1. Nurmi passed the two mile mark in 9:13-2, far below his phenomenal record of 8:31-5. Ritols' time in winning was 14:33-3. Paavo's time was 11:30-1-8 for 2 1/2 miles. The old record made by Ritols was 11:40-1-4.

Presenting the Bright Side of Adopting a Child

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"After reading your article recently on the risk of adopting children I cannot refrain from writing my experience, which may give you food for thought on this subject, and perhaps encourage some childless men and women to take a little orphan into their home."

"Having been made an orphan early in life," goes this letter, "I was placed in one of the supposedly best institutions for orphans in the United States. Later I was sent to a miserable private home thousands of miles from my birthplace, as I wasn't a state child and could not be adopted. Then having to fight for my rights to get an education, and at 17 to put up a bold fight to enter a hospital for the eyes, I was unable to live, eat, and sleep. I decided when I was 18 to follow my profession I would help to support some child every two years on my salary. This I did until I had helped eleven through school."

"I never dreamed of adopting one until 1919. I had taken a girl into my home for two years, but as she was of a different religion and 14 years of age I decided to let her go with her parents to help them. Then I had a chance to take a little girl not quite 5 years of age. The child looked neglected. I closed my eyes for a minute to think how it would be possible for me to undertake a business woman and a vacation nurse to take a young child. But here was a great opportunity and I must not turn it down. The little girl was left with me."

"The board of education gave me a permit to take this child back and forth with me to Long Island and put her in school there until my day's work was over. Then I called for her and took her home with me. On summer vacations she went with me just the same, and I always found a congenial companion in every block that I had to visit."

"I have now taken out papers for this little girl, and there is not a more beautiful child in the United States. Merely or blood did not count in any of the children I had. Instead, good health, environment, education, and love will, in my opinion, bring any child more than up to standard."

"At the age of 10 years this little girl, now my daughter, was the youngest professional dramatic reader ever broadcast. At the age of 11 she is ready for high school. She has taken vocal lessons, piano, violin, and dancing. She has the physique of a girl of 14, and is perfect mentally and physically."

"In the early part of December I had an accident which made me unfit for business for a time. My little daughter overheard me telling a friend that I was at my wit's end as to expense, and not able to work. This morning, instead of getting ready as usual for school, the child kept following me around. When I asked her the trouble, she said: 'I left a note upstairs for you and hoped you would read it before coming down.'

"I read it up, got the note, and this is what I read: 'My dearest mother: I feel so hurt this morning to think you are sending me to a private school. Dear mother, I am more than willing to go to a public school and to give up all outside expense but my dancing. This would like to keep to help me make money later for you. I know you don't want me to go to work until I am through college, but it could be a great pleasure to me to help you and pay my way through college. Now, please send me to a public school this morning and until your business is all straightened out. You are first in my life, and I would rather have you than the whole world. Your loving little daughter.'

"You see," continues this letter to me, "there is no risk, but all joy in adopting a child. The world needs an awakening on this subject. If I could get hold of the project, I would do all that was needed. I would take six tomorrow, adopt every one of them, and not ask a question about heredity. If I, a single business woman, can do this on a salary, what could prosperous married people do?"

"I wish some theater manager wanted a real play on institution life—an orphan's life and the real truth and pathos of it. He could have it free of charge. The plays shown on the subject are not a comparison to the real life of an orphan."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youth full of life. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it is a daze, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't be gray! Look young! Either prepare it at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell if it darkens so naturally and easily. Use a soft brush or soft brush with it, drawing it through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Win Mother Oper.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 15 and love with a girl two years my junior. Her mother strictly forbids her to go out with me, as she claims her daughter can do a great deal better. I know the girl cares for me, as she has told me so; but she is afraid to meet with me for fear her mother may find out."

RICHARD.

"Richard, I shouldn't ask the young lady to go out if I were you, when you know she cannot accept because her mother does not approve of you. But, son, go ahead and make something of yourself, showing the mother she was wrong in her judgment of you, and then try to win the daughter."

The Breaks Dates.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man and I am in love with a girl my age. I love her dearly, and I think she likes me. In the last two weeks she has broken two dates with me. Is it proper for me to ask her for another one?"

B. D. F.

"She has a strange way of showing she cares for you, son. I fear it is not so, or she wouldn't break her appointments with you. I shouldn't try to see her again. Find some girl who has more regard for her word and for you, B. D. F. There are plenty of them, and you will have no trouble finding one, I am sure."

"I don't know," replied Bobbie;

Lucile was taking care of her little brother while her mother was shopping. He got away from her and ran down the street. He refused to go with her, and lay on the walk, screaming and kicking.

Lucie was unable to do anything with him and noticing a man across the street, called, "O, mister, would you mind coming over and giving him a licking for me?"

J. H. H.

a long time, then finally said, "Good-bye, Aunt Emily, and thank you for what you did not give me."

Robert came to the dinner table with dirty hands. Father sternly ordered him to go and wash them.

After waiting a reasonable time, the head of the house called, "Come Bobbie, haven't you your hands washed?"

Alex likes to be told the story of Red Riding Hood. Mother, downtown one day, thinking it would please Alice, gave her a Red Riding Hood doll. Arriving home, she handed Alice the doll.

Imagine her surprise when Alice commenced to cry.

Asking her what was the matter, she replied, "Where is the wolf?"

A Monument to the Industrial Enterprise of the New World —

Proud towers have always been man's highest expression of that elusive thing called beauty. They have also been his chief defiance of Time.

Tribune Tower will stand beyond the life of any man now living. Built of steel sheathed in concrete and stone, resting on the solid rock, this straight and shining shaft is made to stand a thousand years from now, when St. Paul's is a memory—when the last stone of the Parthenon is on the ground—when our own time will be as far distant as the time of the white-robed Norman knights is from us. It will stand then, as now, straight and true, a symbol of the idealism of an industrial age.

Tribune Tower, standing on Chicago's avenue of temples, will furnish any firm with an incomparable address—as well known as Trafalgar Square, Rue de la Paix, Unter den Linden, Avenue Victor Emmanuel or Fifth Avenue.

Remember, the business address of a commercial enterprise is integral with its name on stationery, contracts and advertising matter, and the address of your firm may be either an asset or a liability. But if your address is Tribune Tower, Chicago, it will be a prestige-building force for you wherever in the wide world literate men may read it!

Booklet and detailed information with floor plans of space still available will be painstakingly submitted to interested executives. Phone Central 0100, or address

New York, March 17.—Stock prices collapsed again today under the weight of an enormous volume of selling orders, net losses in the active issues ranging from one to eight points.

One hundred and three individual issues crashed to new low prices for the year. The average of twenty-five leading industrial stocks closed down nearly 2 points for the day, while the same number of railroad issues was down a little more than five-eighths of a point. The combined average dropped approximately 1% points. The average for fifty stocks was only about a point above the low mark for the year to date, which was 106.15 on Jan. 16, and was more than 7 points below the high mark, which was 112.85 on March 3. Total sales exceeded 2,600,000 shares, the largest volume since Jan. 5.

Wheat Also Declines.

The reaction in stocks was coincident with another break in wheat prices, with heavy liquidation of securities reported for the account of traders who also had been in the market for the grain market. Specifically, four of a security for the St. Paul railroad, the senate's rejection of the Warren appointment indicating a lack of harmony between the administrative and legislative branches of the federal government, disappointment over the extent of the spring trade revival, and the rising tendency of money rates also were regarded as contributing factors to the recent selling of stocks.

The high total of brokers' loans and the apparent inability of pools to attract a public following at the recent high levels also have been factors in the recent selling of stocks.

Specialties Feel Brunt.

The so-called specialties bore the brunt of the selling pressure, net declines of 4 to 8 points being recorded by American, American Can, and Foundry, Standard Dry Goods, Colorado Fuel, Independent Oil and Gas, Commercial Salvage A and B, McCrory Stores E, Nash Motors, Aetna Cast Iron Pipe, Virginia Railway Power, Western Pacific preferred, Worthington Pump, Stewart-Warner Speedometer, and West Penn Power.

Baldwin Locomotive closed 5% lower at 127.45. United States Steel common dropped 1% to 120, a new low on the movement and only 1% above the low for the year.

St. Paul Shakes Rally Later.

St. Paul common duplicated its year's low of 7% and then rallied to 6 for a net gain of 1% point on the day, and then preferred closed 1% higher at 14, after establishing a new low record at 13.4. Jersey Central rose 10 points to 112.50. Among the many rails to fall back a point or more were New York Central, Atchison, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, "Katy" common and preferred, Frisco preferred, Chicago and Eastern Illinois common and preferred, and Chicago Great Western preferred.

Net Declines for Day.

The following table shows the net declines on the day and the recessions from the year's highs in some of the active issues:
